THE END

This is Rocky.
Rocky is a robot. Rocky's world is very mechanical,
and has no
emotions.

After promising to get out, Rocky marched to the owner of the Zoo. He told him about feelings and that David was his best friend.

The owner felt an unfamiliar feeling in his chest. Rocky explained these were emotions. The owner was moved, and let David out.

David and Rocky ran out of the zoo free at last.

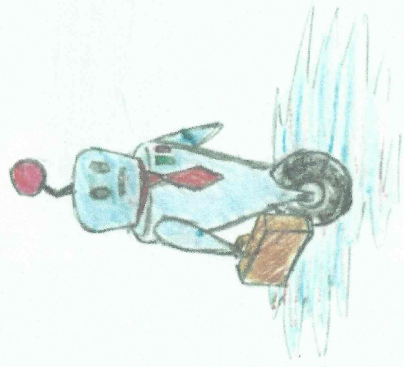

Rocky eats.

Rocky sleeps.

Rocky goes
to work.
Rocky uses
the restroom.

HUMAN

"David!" he cried, "What are you doing here?" "They took me when you left," the boy explained.

One day, Rocky went to the zoo.

When Rocky came home, David was gone! He searched everywhere, but couldn't find his best friend.
After that, Rocky checked the Zoo. He went back to the exhibit where David was before, finding him in a cage.

So the next day, he listened to David's advice.

He thought about eating.

When he felt tired,
he remembered to sleep.

Rocky went to work
even if he wanted to play.

HUMAN

In the human exhibit a boy caught his eye. The plaque on the wall read, Young Male: David.

When they woke up the next day, Rocky didn't go to work. Instead, they played. They drew. They went to the fair. They ran around the park. After having so much fun, Rocky wanted to only use emotions. David scolded Rocky though saying, 'Sometimes it's good to have emotions, but you still have to think.'

When Rocky got a chance to talk to him, David told the robot all about his life, and how he got stuck there.

The robot felt an unfamiliar feeling in his chest. Rocky told the boy he was confused. David explained those were emotions.

Rocky grew sadder the more the boy shared. Suddenly, the robot made up his mind. He liked emotions and he would save the boy.

Rocky picked up David and started running for the exit. The boy and Rocky were chased by a group of guards...but they burst through the zoo doors just in the nick of time! Running through the streets, they made it home safely. David became his first friend. Rocky felt happy.
